Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 16 .- Two sevenboth Willie Mitchell and Dixie Walker weakening in the eighth and allowing the opposition to score four runs. Prior to the eighth, however, the Naps had scored two runs as the result of Walker's wildness, and the Nationals had made one in consequence of an error, thus allowing Cleveland to win the second game of the series, the score being 6 to 5.

The game sure was a thriller. Cleve land scored two runs in the second, and being the tightest of propositions until the explosion took place. On the other hand, Mitchell did not allow a bit until the sixth, when Washington bunched count.

Walker Loses Control. In view of the fact that Walker had been invincible except in the second, when his lack of control was costly, the Naps' chances of winning did not appear at all bright. But you never can tell about these ball games. Jackson led off plays in Cleveland's half with a single to center. New York is the hardest play in Philadelphia. proposition of the two teams which the Washington champions have to meet, as the boys from the Empire State have a seasoned battery and a fast fielding aggregation to back up the pitcher. Washington should win on its batting ability, but if the Cornell boys fall down with the willow a close and hard battle is bound to result.

In answer to a telegram from the writer, the manager of the New York team wired that his line-up would be the same as last week, but reports from New get into a game. York and statements in the newspapers there point to the contrary. One paper ooldly prints that the New York team will be considerably strengthened by players whose status is questionable, because the Cornell is much older, man to man, than the New York nine.
